We lead with the Marketing Concept

OUR CHOICE

Marketing Concept

Focus
Understand and satisfy customers' needs and wants.

Why it fits FitBite
The product was developed after identifying a real need: Ahmed, a student who needs an affordable, nutritious snack.

THE ALTERNATIVES WE SET ASIDE

Production Concept

Focus Efficiency and distribution.

Risk May overlook customer preferences.

Product Concept

Focus Quality and performance.

Risk Can lead to excessively high prices.

Selling Concept

Focus Aggressive promotion and sales.

Risk Little long-term customer loyalty.

We compete for every snack break

Indirect competitors

5 alternatives

Alternatives customers may buy instead to satisfy their hunger.

- Royal biscuits
- Captain Majid chips
- Cadbury chocolate
- Bakery products
- Fresh fruits

Three advantages set FitBite apart

Familiar local ingredients

Ingredients that are familiar and popular among Sudanese consumers.

Convenient packaging

A small, practical pack that is easy to carry and eat anywhere.

Affordable price

1,000 SDG, compared with about 1,500 SDG for many competing products.

About one-third cheaper. The competitor price is an estimate.

Four lenses on the market

Demographic

Ages 16 to 35, especially students and employees with low to middle incomes.

Geographic

Khartoum, Omdurman and Bahri, near universities, gyms and other places our customers visit.

Psychographic

People who prefer convenient, familiar and affordable snacks that fit an active lifestyle.

Behavioral

Regular snack buyers who need a quick refreshment during breaks and respond to discounts, offers and multipacks.

Students first, then gyms and professionals

PRIMARY TARGET

University students aged 18 to 30

Need affordable, tasty and convenient snacks during their studies and daily activities.

SECONDARY TARGET

Gym members and busy professionals

Need a quick snack during their daily routines.

Why this market is attractive

Repeat sales

Students buy snacks regularly.

Affordable reach

TikTok, Instagram and word of mouth among students.

To verify: the assumption that this market is more than 40% of the total market needs market research before it is presented as a confirmed figure.
